Class History

A DRAMA

THE ENLIGHTENING YEARS

(Class History, by Nancy Albert)

CHARACTERS: Members of the Class of 1952.

SETTING: Honaker High School

TIME: September 1948—May 1952

PROLOGUE

Long ago in the years around 1934 one hundred and thirty-two tiny red bundles of humanity started their development upon this magical sphere we call Earth. For about thirteen years they were permitted to grow and develop according to their own rules near their own homes, in whatever valley, dale, mountain, or village their parents had settled, but they were all destined to meet on one fateful day — September 1st, 1948 — the Red Letter Day, which marked the entrance of one hundred and thirty-two adolescent boys and girls into Honaker High School.

Join us as we watch their progress through four Enlightening Years:

ACT I — The Bewildering Year

This was our year of learning the ways of high school. We were not used to all the hustle and bustle of changing classes, plus the hated superiority of upperclassmen. However, we had our moments. This was the first year Freshmen were allowed to join clubs. Our Freshman picnic with our sponsor — "that new teacher, Strickland" is still a pleasant memory. We had a creditable showing in athletic, forensic, and all other school activities, and we looked forward to the time when we could be out of that lowly estate of "just a Freshman."

ACT II — The Recognition Year

This was our year of actually "knowing the ropes" of high school. How we pitied and heckled the Freshmen, forgetting how we had suffered only the year before the degredation of "nobody knows me." The upperclassmen took a new interest in us now that we had cleared the first hurdle, and our class began to stand out in all phases of school life. Our sponsor, Mr. Davis, led us throughout the year and a high spot was our delightful Sophomore party. There was great excitement during basketball season, and we were especially proud of our members on the squads. Another joyful time was the Harvest Festival, with one of our own classmates, Bud Gent, as Harvest King. We were all saddened greatly by the unfortunate death of our beloved classmate, Guy Whitt; and we made a solemn resolve not to forget him in the years to come.

ACT III — The Belonging Year

Although we looked forward to our Junior year with anticipation, there was one cloud on the horizon — one with red hair and a giant American History book in her hand, called for some strange reason "The Junior's Bible." Many fell by the wayside at this "Slough of Despair," but the majority struggled through and enjoyed the highlight of the year, the Junior-Senior Prom, given by the Juniors with the help of our sponsors, Mr. Shipley and Mrs. Davis. Then the great moment for all Juniors came — that badge of success — our class rings! How proud we were then and how happy on graduation night, when we paid tribute to the Seniors of 1951 thinking longingly of the wonderful day when we would be the greatest of all.

ACT IV — The Glorious Year

The great day had come — we were Seniors! No one could ever feel so grand as we felt when we entered the door of the Senior Home Room on that morning in September. How careful we were to walk with casual dignity and to pretend not to notice the envious stares of Freshmen We were soon plunged into Senior activities under the guidance of our sponsor, Miss Mary Sue Fuller. Class elections of all kinds were held, and then work on the annual started, we remembered our solemn pledge not to forget our classmate, Guy Whitt, whose seat had been vacant since April 8th, 1950, and we honored this memory by dedicating, this our greatest achievement, "The Torch," to him. The year with its many happy times passed all too quickly, and soon we found ourselves bedecked in caps and gowns marching between the daisy chains carried by the Juniors, to receive our final award — our diplomas! Although we were saddened by leaving our dear Alma Mater, we looked forward courageously to the parts each of us would play in this great scheme of things in the world outside.

Class Poem

Long after our school life has ended
And life seems such a bore,
We'll recall the days of our youth
And we'll think of things we never thought of before!

We'll think of the days
When we thought school was all friction and strife,
Then, we never thought that school days
Were the happiest days of our life.

And when the teachers told us
What we could or could not do,
We all complained and thought
Oh, if we were only through!

But after we've grown older,
And have faced many of life's sorrows,
Oh, happy school days we'll think of you
In all of our tomorrows.

We'll also think of our classmates
And wonder if each one's dream came true,
Because we were just like brothers and sisters,
When we were Seniors in 1952.

Class Prophecy

One cold and dreary afternoon in the year 1972, I found myself millions of miles above the earth. I was waiting for the latest news on the Xenon Bomb, which was due to explode in ten minutes. As my space ship roared through atomosphere, I grew tired and decided to amuse myself.

To my left was one of the most amazing solarivision sets ever perfected. With a tiny touch of the dial one can locate any place on earth or in space he wishes to see. This marvelous instrument was perfected by the great Don Barrett.

Since this was the twentieth anniversary of my graduation from Honaker High School, I attempted to locate each of my former classmates in their chosen professions.

The first spot which I saw was the well-known town of Castlewood, Virginia; and the President of the United States was giving a speech on "What I like about the South." The president was none other than Nancy Albert. The distinguished guests who were enjoying the speech were Clara Campbell, Mayor of Castlewood, and James Cassell, the foremost historian of the century.

Imagine my surprise when I saw Marvin Barton announcing for the Outer Space News Review!

The small town of Lebanon, Virginia loomed before me, and I saw that the people were celebrating some great occasion. On a platform I saw John L. Boyd, who wore a sign which said, "Vote for Cox for President." Nearby I saw Curtis Cox with a sly grin on his face, as he waved to the crowd who had just nominated him Republican Candidate for the coming election.

Suddenly I got a glimpse of Swords Creek and Alvin Dye, the famous screen director of Pluto, was helping Paul Honaker and Anna Ruth Combs as they paused in the hit of the century "Supernatural." Getting ready for appearance was Darlene Stinson, who had replaced the late Patti Page.

Then the switches got crossed for a moment, and during that time I saw C. A. Hess riding by on a gravity-controlled motorcycle; and following close behind him was Charles Fogleman in his souped-up-Spaceford with a ticket for C. A. because he was speeding on the Milky Way.

Lorene Combs, Froncie Stiltner, and Mary Frances Wheatley were entering the "Miss Solar System" contest which was to be judged by Frank Phillips, a great movie director of Mars.

The next scene was Johnny Strouth's Insurance Agency. He was giving instruction to his efficient bookkeeper, Betty Wilson.

Near a crossroads I saw Nellie Coleman and Laura Harris, who were hitch-hiking around the world. They told me they had been to California, Florida, Russia, South America, and Mars. Their destination now was the moon.

The next scene was the Governor's Mansion in Richmond. Imagine my surprise when I saw the wife of the governor. She was our own little Darlene Harris.

I switched the dial to Cleveland, Virginia, to the Swanky Shops on Tenth and Elm Streets. Here I saw three beautiful models. They were the most beautiful ones I had ever seen and as the screen cleared I recognized them as Grayce Garrison, Wanda Dye, and Ruth Chambers.

The capital of the United States loomed before me and I heard that the President's cabinet had been called together to hear the report on the latest army equipment given by the Secretary of Defense, Joan Whited.

Don Honaker, the new baseball coach of the Honaker Tigers, was getting his boys ready to go to the ball park to begin the World Series against the Cleveland Indians.

A blue Nash whizzed by; and as it stopped for a red light, I recognized the driver as Mrs. Bud Mullins (the former Ruby McReynolds). She had the children separated, one in the front with her and one in the rear seat. They were fighting regardless of Ruby's attempts to restore order.

Class Prophecy (Continued)

Then I saw a handsome man pecking away on a typewriter. It was the one and only Bill Justice, editor of the Justice Fix-it-up Lovelorn Column, writing to Dorothy Dix. He wanted to know what to do when you asked a woman five times to marry you and she still refused.

Fred Rasnake, still an eligible bachelor, was grinning from ear to ear as he watched Lois Jackson perform in Don Ray's "Rare Dance Club."

In the John Hopkins Hospital I saw Charlene Martin, a pert little nurse, smiling as she helped Dr. Louise Jackson perfrom an operation on a handsome boxer, Curtis Steele. Curt had won the Featherweight Championship of the Universe by knocking out the "Mars Marvel," the boxer who had won all the bouts on Mars, the Moon, and Jupiter.

The office of the Roanoke News was the next scene. Fern Musick, the editor, had her star reporters, Monica Miller and Doris Tuggle covering the "Big Hess Story." Some one had broken into Shirley Hess's mansion stealing all the family jewels. Shirley's husband, Glen Vance, who is ambassador to Mars, was on vacation when the robbery occured.

Gene Stump had crashed the Grand Opera as the first hillbilly star to ever sing "I Ain't Gonna Take it Sitting Down" in the Metropolitan Opera House.

The "Hess Farm" located just outside of Honaker was advertised in the Progressive Farmer as the only farm in the world which raises all-steak cows. The owner, Curtis Hess, was beaming proudly as the foremost photographer of the time, Herman Miller, snapped his picture.

Under the shade of an old apple tree I saw Mildred Taylor, still as lazy as ever, but she told me she had a job in Peggy Hughes's bakery as the Chief Pie Taster.

At the annual Lawyer's Convention in Philadelphia Dorthy Plaster, the foremost lawyer of her time, smiled proudly as a badge was pinned on her by Charles Ray, Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court.

The Wac's of Los Angeles, California were very fond of their new Commander, Bernice Whitt. I was also told that in her spare time Bernice was a model for Betty Smith's Space Modeling Agency.

The Honaker Zoo had just received a shipment of wild animals from Edd Deel and Bud Gent, who were now on the moon capturing queer animals.

Douglas Jamison and Jimmy McGlothin were having great sales with their new rat killer, Pew-Dead, an instant rat killer which absorbs the rats.

My eye caught a view of a great wedding feast near Richlands. As I looked closer, I saw that the bride was Mary Elizabeth East. The feast was being held at the mansion of Zetta Wayne Sword; and the great Jimmy Rickman, the Producer of the movies in the Sky Theater, was chatting gaily with Margaret Fletcher, successor to Emily Post.

The hold-up business had been taken over completely by Mr. and Mrs. Burl Wyatt (former Patty Wysor). They were selling a new kind of belts and suspenders.

I clicked off the dial and sighed with relief. Ah, my classmates had done well for themselves in the past years; and I must say I was very proud to be one of them, even if I am only a flunky coping notes for those who are great. I aroused my companion who was sound asleep by my side and started telling her about our former classmates.

Coronation

Class Will

We, the Senior Class of 1952, Honaker High School, City of Honaker, Russell County, Virginia, being of sound mind, do hereby declare this to be our last will and testament, duly drawn and signed this the 26th day of May, in the year of our Lord, one thousand, nine hundred, and fifty-two. We do solemnly will and bequeath the following:

To the Juniors we leave all the traditions and privileges of Seniors, in hope that they will enjoy and fulfill them to the fullest extent.

To the faculty we leave our respect, admiration, and deep gratitude for the help and advice which they have given us during our high school years.

To dear old Honaker High we leave the memory of both the good times and the bad shared by us in our happy, but often torturous, progress threugh its halls of learning.

Nancy Albert gives her cheerleading uniform to Mary K. Davis, and her love for the State of Virginia to Mr. Strickland.

Don Barrett bestows upon Buddy Mullins his musical ability.

Marvin Barton wills his double-clutching ability to Mr. Couch and hopes this will make him a better driver.

John L. Boyd bequeaths his wavy hair to Mrs. E. N. Busic.

Clara Campbell wills her ability to get Home Economics to Reba Corns.

James Cassell gives his fielding experience in baseball to Larry Sykes.

Ruth Chambers leaves her title "Senior Queen" to Bobbie Van Dyke.

Nellie Coleman bequeaths her quiet disposition to some loud-mouthed Junior.

Anna Ruth Combs hopefully wills everything she possesses except Glenn to Nadrene Shell.

Lorene Combs gives some of her sewing ability to Reba Corns and hopes that it will do some good.

Curtis Cox leaves to Frank Brown his job at the Blue Valley Creamery.

Edd Deel wills his position in basketball to Tolby Johnson.

Alvin Dye gives his interest in Dramatics to LaRoy Whited.

Mary Elizabeth East gives her false tooth to "Jeep" Beavers.

Margaret Fletcher bequeaths her height to Sarah Love Gregory.

Charles Fogleman leaves his low desk to Kyle Gregory.

Grayce Garrison wills her skill at whispering out loud to anyene who gets a back seat.

Bud Gent reluctantly gives his limousine "Vangie Gal" to Harless Wilson.

Darlene Harris gives her quietness in class to Ruby Hess.

Laura Harris wills her ability to drive a certain green Chevrolet to Shirley Harris.

C. A. Hess leaves some of his bashfulness to his brother Ulis.

Curtis Hess leaves his back seat in History Class to Carlos Ray so he can look out the door.

Shirley Hess gives her remarkable memory to someone in the Junior Class but has forgotten who.

Don Honaker wills his ability to play basketball to Jackie Miller.

Paul Honaker wills his typewriter to Bill Corns.

Peggy Hughes wills her title "Miss Senior" to Christine Irick.

Douglas Jamison hopes to leave some of his driving ability to Columbus Hess.

Lois Jackson wills her slenderness to Shirley Owens.

Louise Jackson wills her vivid imagination to Larry Sykes.

Bill Justice bequeaths his position as F. F. A. President to Garland Hess.

Charlene Martin gives her height to Shirley Harris.

Jimmy McGlothin bequeaths his chemistry book to Larry Sykes.
Ruby McReynolds gives her long black hair to "Jeep" Beavers who needs it badly.
Herman Miller wills his long legs to Buddy East.
Monica Miller gives her ability to get along with Mrs. Miller to some poor Junior.
Fern Musick bequeaths her gift of gab to Nadyne Jackson.
Frank Phillips leaves his squeaky seat in geometry class to Bill Corns.
Dorothy Plaster wills her ability to get speech to some bashful Junior.
Fred Rasnake gives his typing ability to Ralph Jackson.
Charles Ray leaves his American History book to his brother Raymond.
Don Ray wills his catching ability to his brother Raymond.
Jimmy Rickman bequeaths his intentions to do good to Clyde Wilson.
Betty Smith leaves her chemistry book to some Sophomore with a brain.
Curtis Steele gives his interest in the Yankees to anyone who will take it.
Darlene Stinson wills her desire to take life easy to some serious-minded Junior.
Johnny Strouth gives his seat in Senior Homeroom to Shirley Steele.
Eugene Stump wills his skill in English grammar to some poor Junior.
Zetta Sword lovingly gives her bleached bangs to Janith Valley.
Mildred Taylor bequeaths her title "Laziest" to Shirley Miller.
Doris Ann Tuggle gives her love for shorthand to some unlucky Junior.
Glen Vance leaves his seat in English class to Billy Breedlove.
Mary Francis Wheatley bestows upon Helen Lowe her slim figure.
Joan Whited wills her salesmanship ability to Ralph Jackson.
Bernice Whitt wills her title "Most Athletic" to Bobbie Van Dyke.
Betty Wilson gives her position as Business Manager of "THE TORCH" to Evangeline Whited.
Burl Wyatt leaves his big feet to Doc Stovall.
Patty Wysor bestows her position on the basketball team upon Mary Katherine Davis.

In witness whereof, we have hereunto subscribed our names and affixed our seal.
